IUP International
Undergraduate Program

in International Relations
Universitas Gadjah Mada

Department of International Relations , Faculty of Social and Political Sciences, Universitas Gadjah Mada founded the International Undergraduate Program (IUP) with the aim of producing graduates equipped with excellent academic competence and the necessary skills to fill the growing needs and intensity of global engagements.

The expected outcome is not for the graduates to merely be the members of a global society , but also for them to inspire and bring about changes to the existing political , economic , and social conditions , and lead their transformations to build a better world. The program envisions and endeavors toward a just, peaceful, and civilized global society.

The courses offered in the program reflect this vision, and are structured along two main threads. First, the courses contain a set of studies on various objects related with international relations. Second, they also contain discussions about the way international relations are portrayed, and explore the views about how the future of international relations should be. To this end, students will not only be equipped with mere knowledge and skills, but also with a critical attitude toward the existing conditions in international relations, such as injustice, inequality, poverty, environmental degradation, and violence.

The program develops innovative and collaborative learning process in the class. It also promotes problem-solving oriented research, in addition to its mission to facilitate students oriented toward reflection, action, and emancipation.

Competence

1. Diplomacy
